Health Information Systems

Organizations need to make every healthcare dollar count to achieve the best possible outcomes for members.

While congress wrestles with the issues of healthcare reform, the Obama administration has made some long awaited improvements in funding for Indian Health Services with a 13% increase in the 2010 budget. This additional funding is a critical first step in addressing deficiencies in the health system.

Advantura offers a full range of healthcare consulting services. We help our clients improve financial performance and achieve the most productive organizational alignment among medical staff, management, and trustees to optimize overall performance.

Our health data analysts can help you decode the data you have to determine the quality and cost drivers in your health system and help you understand which interventions will have the greatest impact on your system.

Advantura's project managers, systems analysts and healthcare information specialists can help you tackle the toughest problems facing health systems today. We can assist clients with electronic medical record system procurement, design, implementation and enhancements.
